On Wednesday, February 17, Mr. Renzbi Nuobu presented his Ph.D. dissertation on the interaction between the monetary policy and the housing values in the Japanese economy. He focuses on the time-varying feature (Chapter 1) and the heterogenous effects among households (Chapter 2). In Chapter 3, he investigates the interaction between the entrepreneurship and the housing values in the Chinese economy. He perfected his thesis responding to all the key comments made at the Interim Review. The Committee members (Professors Iida, Kato, Nakata, Miyao, and myself, Ueda) unanimously agreed that Renzhi passed the Final Review.
